

MEN-AT-ARMS TO BE WARNED BY 'MOVIE' TO GUARD HEALTH

By BILL PRICE.

As part of the nation-wide plan to insure education in health of the youth of the land now going into the army, the famous play, "Damaged Goods" will be seen Sunday afternoon in film in the National Theater.

So impressed is Major Raymond Pullman, superintendent of Washington's Police Department, with the horrors that are threatened—his own experiences in saving soldiers, marines, and sailors from perils being numerous—he has made himself personally responsible for the costs of the presentation of the play, generous assistance having been given by those co-operating with him. Harry Rapley, manager of the National Theater, offered that playhouse free of cost for all of Sunday afternoon, and the Mutual Film Corporation will furnish the films.

Men in Uniform Enter Free.

Men in uniform will be admitted free of charge to either of the two performances, the first beginning at 2:30 o'clock. An admission fee will be charged civilians.

Among the distinguished men who will be present will be Secretary Daniels, of the Navy Department; Surgeon General Gorgas, the famous sanitary expert; Rear Admiral Branstetter; General Scott, chief of staff of the army; General Barnett, commanding the Marine Corps; Commissioner Brownlow, and dozens of army and navy officers whose names may soon fill newspaper space. Addresses will be made by some of these notables.

Raymond Foodick, chairman of the commission on training camp activities, is joining with Major Pullman in inaugurating the beginning of an extensive motion picture campaign for the education of men in uniform and in civil life.

Would Awaken To Dangers.

It is recognized today that official efforts to awaken a thorough realization of the immense dangers of this problem must have the complete backing of thinking men and women of the nation who have not only a deep patriotic interest, but are vitally interested from the standpoint of their own flesh and blood. Concerned must everywhere be done to prevent repetition of the events that have laid low hundreds of thousands of French, British, and Italian soldiers, untouched by bullets, but incapacitated possibly for life.

The Navy Department, the War Department, the National Council of Defense, the surgeons general of the army, navy and public health service, the American Red Cross, Young Men's Christian Association, American Social Hygiene Association, American Playground Association, religious organizations everywhere are working steadily to conserve the health of the army and navy and elevate physical and moral standards through the social hygiene movement.

There has not been the general awakening so vitally necessary, though, and motion pictures are to be added to the hundreds of other forms of appeal.

Uniforms a Symbol of Health.

"Make the American uniform a symbol and guarantee of real health," is the motto all along the line. Medical men in the big medical universities have pledged their co-operation in the campaign of education, which it is declared must go on until after the close of the war, so that the returning veterans from the battlefields of Europe may bring back to their native land the same physical freedom from disease that they went away with.

Incessant propaganda for rational sex life must be the slogan of leaders among men and women in every city, town, and village in the United States. Preparedness, it is pointed out, must have a meaning other than skill in military knowledge and the accumulation of huge quantities of ammunition and arms.

"Through this movement is national in scope," said Major Pullman, "there are thousands of Washington fathers and mothers who appreciate the situation because of the blood ties binding them to the best of Washington's young manhood either now in training camps or soon to be there."

This Groom Is No Slacker; 73, He Weds Girl of 19

HARRISONBURG, Va., Sept. 12.—Isaiah Gladden, seventy-three years old, and Miss Myrtle Medlock, nineteen, have been married in this city by the Rev. P. S. Thomas, of the Church of the Brethren. The groom is a farmer, of Harpers Ferry, W. Va.

Mr. Gladden and Miss Medlock went together to the clerk's office to get the license. Miss Medlock wore her bridal veil to the courthouse, and the couple attracted much attention from spectators. The crowd laughed when they sped away in an automobile, and one man remarked: "Well, anyhow, we know he ain't doing 'it' to avoid the draft."

GIRL IN JAIL AS SLAYER PLACES HOPE IN INQUEST

CHICAGO, Sept. 12.—Although Dr. Leon Quitman is dead and she is charged with his murder, Ruby Dean could yet manage a smile in jail, although a rueful one.

The truth about it all would come out at the inquest tomorrow, she said. No, she and Dr. Quitman's wife hadn't quarreled over the telephone before the shooting. She had never said that. But—no, she wouldn't talk.

The cabaret girl's cellmate is a foreign girl who sleeps almost constantly in the bed built for one. Miss Dean, therefore, sits upright on a bench. But they are friends in misery. Now and then the cellmate will rouse from her stupor and the dainty Miss Dean and the girl who isn't will clasp one another in consolation.

'BUSINESS SCHEME,' PLEADS SALESMAN HELD AS 'SLAVER'

BALTIMORE, Sept. 12.—On charges of violating the Mann white slave act, Leon Simon, twenty-six years old, and Abraham M. A. Wallace, twenty-seven years old, of New York, were given a hearing before United States Commissioner Supple yesterday and then turned over to Justice Packard, who held them for court. The men and Miss Lucille Heath, nineteen years old, of Richmond, Va., were caught in a room in a downtown hotel by police of the Central district, who were notified by hotel attendants.

It was shown at the hearing before Justice Packard that Wallace, who is a traveling salesman, met Miss Heath at a department store in Richmond and was advised that, if he wanted to get business from the store he was to treat her well, as she was a friend of the store's buyer. Later Wallace said that Miss Heath wrote him for $10 and that he pointed out to the head of the New York firm, for which he works, that it would be a good business proposition to send the money. The money was sent.

Weeping bitterly while telling her story, Miss Heath said that she met Wallace three months ago. She said that Wallace sent her repeated telegrams to come to New York, and that she was finally persuaded to come here when he sent her a telegram telling her to meet him in Baltimore and advising her that he had sent her $10.

Coming to the city, Miss Heath said she went to a hotel and there saw Wallace, who, Miss Heath alleges, signed "and wife" after his name.

The testimony was brought out that Simon, a cousin of Wallace, met the girl and was acting as an entertainer for the evening in the absence of Wallace from the hotel. Miss Heath is being held as a State's witness.

CHIEFS GIVE FURLOUGHS FOR JEWISH HOLIDAYS

The War and Navy Departments have announced that furloughs will be granted Jewish soldiers, sailors, and marines to enable them to observe Yom Kippur and Rosh Hashanah. The furloughs will extend from noon, September 16, to the morning of September 19, and from noon, September 25, to the morning of September 27.

With the authorization of Secretaries Baker and Daniels the Jewish Publication Society is distributing free copies of an abridged prayer book to Jewish soldiers and sailors, estimated to number 60,000.

WAR GARDEN CRUSHED BY RESTLESS SLEEPER

CHICAGO, Sept. 12.—Strange sounds in his garden aroused Thomas La-

Maney, police operator at the Englewood station, from his slumbers. Investigating, La Maney discovered a man stretched out asleep among the cabbages and tomatoes. All the vines and plants for ten feet around were laid flat.

The unwelcome sleeper gave the name of John O'Donnell, sixty-five years old. He will be arraigned in court on a charge of disorderly conduct.

"I hope he gets life," said La Maney. "My poor little war garden, that I labored on all summer, is ruined."

FRONT LINE TRENCHES QUIET, MURDOCK SAYS

If you want to find peace and quiet in France, get into the front line trenches of the allied fighting forces. That's the advice of former Congressman Victor Murdock of Kansas, now a member of the Federal Trade Commission, given in an interview today.

"The 'first line' is disappointing, in a fashion," said Mr. Murdock. "Once a man has been there for several days, he feels the most remarkable sense of security.

"There seems to be an understanding between the two sides that the soldiers of both forces must be careful, because if something is started somebody may get hurt."
